This includes the crypt and the prison. The church and the crypt were originally prepared to be used by a prelate. Being part of the bishopric, there is no doubt these communicated directly with the cathedral. At the lowest level of the place, markings from the Via Augusta were found within what was the city. As for the prison, tradition says that San Vicente the Martyr was scourged here. One hundred years later, it was converted to an oratory and chapel that still remain today, and where in 1777, the well was discovered.
