Hydrospeed is based on an aerodynamic board designed to sail along white water rivers. It looks like a surf board that has been cut in two and made suitable for rivers, with a greater volume. The "hydro" is used to support your body, and your feet are provided with flippers to propel yourself forward. Participants are in contact with water, but are dressed with a neoprene wetsuit that isolates them from the cold. In the Valencia Region, it is possible to practice this sport in the river Cabriel.
